The Danner/Fletcher house is a significant Charleston house in its age and style. Older than most homes in South Hills, it is a fine, unspoiled example of the Late Victorian farmhouse, and is the only house of this style in the area.

Captain George Danner (1826-1897) immigrated to the United States from Baden-Baden, Germany in 1856 and came to Charleston after three years of service in the West Virginia Volunteer Infantry in the Civil War. William S. Laidley, in his History of Charleston and Kanawha County, writes of Danner and his home: "after the war he spent his life at Charleston owning property on which he carried on farming
