ปกโชยd States Department of the Interior T National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

See instructions in How to Complete N Type all entries—complete applicable s t. Name
historic Morgan - Bedinger	r - Dandridge House
and/or common "Rosebrake"
2. Location
street & number S.W. of Shepherd	stown on WV 48	N/A	not for publication city, town Shepherdstown vic	cinity X vicinity of
utate West Virginia cod	e 54 county	Jefferson	code 037
3. Classification
Calegory district public building(s)	Status X occupied unoccupied work in progress Accessible yes: restricted yes: unrestricted no	educational entertainment	museum park private residence religious scientific transportation other:
4. Owner of Prope	rty
name Mrs. Jane W. Snyo	der street & number Route 48
city, town Shepherdstown	_x_ vicinity of	state t.i.	est Virginia
5. Location of Leg			est viiginia
courthouse, registry of deeds, etc.	efferson County Court	house
	ashington and George
	harles Town
6. Representation			est Virginia
e. nepresentation	III EAISTING S	di ve y 3
litte Historic American Building	Survey has this prop	erty been determined eligit	ole?yes _X_ no
date 1937		X federal state	county local depository for survey records Division	of Prints and Photos	raphs. Library of Co	ongress
city, town Washington		state D

7. Description

Condition	Ch	eck one	Check one
X excellent	_ deteriorated	unaltered	original s	ite
good		_ altered	moved .	date
Tair	unexposed

Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

"Rosebrake" stands at the end of a private lane off of West Virginia Route 48, southwest of Shepherdstown, Jefferson County, West Virginia.

"Rosebrake", known as "Poplar Grove" until 1877, was constructed in three distinct phases and has had further embellishment since the last phase of solid construction.

The original portion of the building was of white lath and plaster construction. This one-story settlement period structure was built c.1745 by early settler Richard Morgan, and referred to by later occupants as "the Back Building".

The original structure was incorporated into the second phase of construction, which took place in 1803. The "Back Building" became part of the kitchen of the new "Great House" (as referred to by Daniel Morgan, its builder). A two-story brick structure, this "Great House" contained four main rooms, as well as an attic and a cellar. The house was of brick construction and was painted a cream color. It was during Daniel Morgan's occupancy (1803-1833) that the beautiful wisteria was laid out, as well as formal gardens and other landscaping features which still form an important part of the grounds.

In 1859 what is now the main section of the house was constructed by Caroline Bedinger. It is this main section that gives the house its present "feeling" and orientation, facing west. The 1803 building, which became an ell for the main structure, faced northeast. The main section is a two-story rectangular masonry block on a stone foundation and is surmounted by a hipped roof of raised seamed metal with "snowbirds". The structure has a pro-nounced classical symmetry, highlighted with a central two tiered portico of classic design. The front facade is of three bays, and is centered with a Greek Revival style doorway with rectangular transom and sidelights. Floor length coupled triple sash windows, a 20th-century modification, flank the central bay on the first level. Coupled double hung windows are at the second level. Balanced interior and chimneys add to the feeling of symmetry in the main block.

The 1859 main block originally had a full length one-story veranda supported by wooden uprights with decorative detail. The feature which gives the front facade its most pronounced element is the Classical Palladian portico, two tiered with Roman Doric columns with a fanlighted triangular pediment. This feature, however, was added to the front facade in 1950, being removed from a house in Long Island, New York and shipped to West Virginia for "Rosebrake". A two tiered prorch on the rear ell was also brought from New York and added to the house at this time.

"Rosebrake" is the focal point of a lovely, almost classical rural landscaped estate that has existed since the mid-18th century. The house itself has grown and adapted through the years to changing times and circumstances, and remains the locally significant landmark that has always been to the citizens of Jefferson County.

ெ Significance

Period	Areas of Significance—C	neck and justify below	기업에 기계 기계 경우 유선 최고(육년 시간 사람 ₩ 12 기계 기업 등급 기계 경우에 기업을 기계 없는
prehistoric 1400-1499	archeology-prehistoric archeology-historic	community planning	ng landscape architectu law	re religion science
1500–1599 1300–1699	agriculture architecture	economics	X_ literature military	sculpture social/
X 1700-1799 X 1800-1899	art commerce	engineering X exploration/settlen	music nent philosophy	humanitarian theater
1900-	communications	Industry Invention	X politics/government	transportation X_other(specify) Local History
Specific dates	c.1745, 1803, 1859	Builder/Architect No	ot Known

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

"Rosebrake", located near Shepherdstown, in Jefferson County, West Virginia, is significant as a place that has existed since the early development of the areal, as home to several individuals who have made significant contributions to the social, political, and literary life of the area2, and as a significant rural landmark in Jefferson County3.

Explanatory Notes

1. The building now known as "Rosebrake" was built in three separate and distinct sections at approximately fifty year intervals until it reached its present state at the beginning of the Civil War.

Richard Morgan, one of West Virginia's earliest white settlers, began what is now "Rosebrake" when he constructed a white lath and plaster structure soon after his arrival in what is now Jefferson County in 1744. The house passed at Richard Morgan's death in 1763 to his son Abel Morgan and int-turn to his son Daniel Morgan. Daniel Morgan is responsible for the second major construction at "Rosebrake". In 1803 he constructed a four-room brick addition to the original structure, as well as a cellar and an attic. The exterior brick was painted a cream color, and this house, called "Poplar Grove" by Daniel Morgan, was the scene of many elegant social functions including "an elegant dinner" given by Morgan in 1825 to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the famous "Bee Line March", celebrated in Jefferson County Revolutionary War annals. Morgan also was responsible for planting the wisteria, which still graces the grounds.

In 1859 "Poplar Grove" was purchased by Caroline Lawrence Bedinger, widow of the former Minister to Denmark Henry Bedinger. Soon after occupying the house, Mrs. Bedinger constructed the Bedinger "wing" (as she referred to it) which is today the main section of the house. This "wing" contains six rooms and is of brick construction. The home has remained substantially unchanged since that time, with the exception of the changing of its name from "Poplar Grove" to "Rosebrake" in 1877 and an unusual alteration made in 1950 (see Description #7).

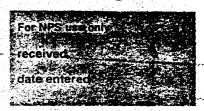

2. "Rosebrake" or, earlier, "Poplar Grove", has been home to a number of individuals singificant to the social, political, and literary life of this part of West Virginia. Richard Morgan (died 1763), the first owner of the property, was one of Jefferson (then part of Berkeley) County's earliest white settlers and landowners. His grandson, Daniel Morgan (died 1833), who made the first major improvements to the structure, was very prominent in Jefferson County affairs. He was a member of Jefferson County's first County Court (1801), was

United States Department of the InteriorNational Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

"Rosebrake", Jefferson County, West Virginia

Continuation sheet Item number

Page 2

Sheriff of Jefferson County 1819-1821, and represented Jefferson County in the Virginia House of Delegates for seven terms (1805, 1806, 1818, 1824, 1825-26, 1827-28, and 1829). After Daniel Morgan's death in 1833, "Poplar Grove" passed to distant relatives and declined somewhat from the social center it had been during Morgan's life.

On July 13, 1859 "Poplar Grove" was purchased by Caroline Lawrence Bedinger, widow of Henry Bedinger, a former two-term U.S. Representative and Minister to Denmark (1853-1858). Mrs. Bedinger built the large red brick "addition" which is now the main part of the house.

During Mrs. Caroline Bedinger's ownership, the house was occupied for four years (1873-1877) by Col. Alexander R. Boteler, another prominent Jefferson Countian. Boteler (1815-1892) had served one term in the U.S. House of Representatives, (1859-1861) during which time he was a candidate for the Speakership. During the Civil War Boteler served on the staff of General Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson before being elected to the Confederate Congress where he served from February, 1862 to February 1864. While living at "Poplar Grove", Boteler was appointed by President Grant to the U.S. Centennial Commission (1876). Boteler subsequently served on the U.S. Tariff Commission and as Pardon Clerk for the U.S. Department of Justice.

Danske Bedinger Dandridge (1854-1914) was the next occupant of the house and she, too, has earned a place in Jefferson County annals. The daughter of Henry and Caroline Bedinger, she was born in Copenhagen while her father was Minister to Denmark. Danske is Danish for "Little Dane". In 1877 she married Adam Stephen Dandridge III and they moved to "Poplar Grove", which she immediately re-christened "Rosebrake", the name by which the property has been known ever since. Danske Bedinger Dandridge was prominent both as a poet and as a local historian. Her poetry was published in numerous national and regional publications, including Harpers and The Century and she published several volumes of verse, including Joy and Other Poems. Her historical works include American Prisoners of the Revolution; George Michael Bedinger, a Kentucky Pioneer; and Historic Shepherdstown, a valued local history. Her husband, Adam Stephen Dandrige III, represented Jefferson County in the West Virginia House of Delegates for three consecutive terms, 1891-1897.

Serena Dandridge and Nina Mitchell, neices of Danske Dandridge, were both locally prominent artists. They lived at "Rosebrake" for four decades after the death of Danske Dandridge, until the property was acquired by the Snyder family in 1970, its present occupants. The Palladian-style portico was added to "Rosebrake" in 1950 by artist Nina Mitchell.

3. "Rosebrake" is considered a significant historic landmark by the historical community of Jefferson County. It was officially designated a Jefferson

NPS Form 10-900-a (7-81) 0)42/40:1024/0018

EXP. 12/31/84

United States Department of the Interior National Park Service

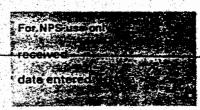

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

"Rosebrake", Jefferson County, West Virginia

Continuation sheet

Item number

8

Page

County Landmark in 1977 by the Jefferson County Historic Landmark Commission and marked by a plaque to that effect. It has been the subject of several articles in the Magazine of the Jefferson County Historical Society, and is prominently mentioned in Historic Shepherdstown, among other publications.

While the addition of the portico in 1950 did alter the appearance of the building, the basic integrity of this landmark is intact. Not considered an architecturally significant structure, it none-the-less retains its 1859 walls, roof-line, chimneys, and interior layout.

"Rosebrake" has witnessed many events and persons pivotal to the history of one of West Virginia's most important counties, and is viewed with pride by its citizens.

9.	Majo	or Bib	liogr	aphic	al R	efer	ence	S
	Office,	phy Direct Washingt Millard K 72.	on, D.C.	, 1971.						January Francisco
10	. Ge	ograp	hica	I Data	a
Quad	7.	inated prope ne Shepher i		_				Quadran	gie scale_	1:24,000
Zoi C E G	ne Easti	17 9 16 10 Ing	Northing			B Zor D H	e East	ing	Northing
48	, forty		thwest o	f the ju	nction	of that	route v	with the	private	rginia Route road, at
List a	all states	N/A	ies for pro	code	C	g state o	r county	boundarie	s co
11 ,	title	Histori	J. Paul C Preser	ey, Histo vation U	orian nit
	zation & number		ent of C	ulture a	nd Histo	ory	date	March 2
city or		Charles		e de la companya de l			state	West Vi
12.	. Sta	te Hi	stori	c Pre	serv	atior	n Off	icer (Certif	ication
The ev	valuated sig	gnificance o national	f this prop	erty within t _ state	he state is	_
565), I	hereby no	d State Hist minate this criteria and	property fo	r inclusion i	n the Nati	onal Regis	ster and c			(Public Law 89– valuated
State F	distoric Pre	eservation C	fficer sign	ature k	ducy	Ilalle	us fo	~ SHP()
itle (Commissi	oner, Dep	artment	of Cultu	re and	History	·	date	March 2	9. 1983
		only rtify that thi				onal Regis		date
	eper of the	National R	egister					date

Chief of Registration

NPS Form 10-900-a

OMB NO. 1024-0018 EXP. 12/31/84

United States Department of the Interior National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

"Rosebrake", Jefferson County, West Virginia
Continuation sheet Item number 9

received date entry co.

Page 2

#9 Major Bibliographical References

Dandridge, Danske Bedinger, Historic Shepherdstown, The Miche Co., Charlottesville, Va., 1910.

Hardesty's West Virginia Counties, Volume 8, Comstock Publishing, Richwood, W.Va., (1883) 1973.

Magazine of the Jefferson County Historical Society, Volume XVIII, "Rosebrake or Poplar Grove", Charles Town, W.Va., December, 1952.

Musser, Clifford S., Two Hundred Year's History of Shepherdstown, The Independent Press, Shepherdstown, W.Va., 1931.

"Oral Interview with Mrs. Jane W. Snyder", by Michael J. Pauley, November 12, 1982, Charleston, W.Va.

Spirit of Jefferson Advocate, "Rosebrake a Landmark", Charles Town, W.Va., March 2, 1977.

United States Department of the Interior National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Inventory—Nomination Form

"Rosebrake", Jefferson County, West Virginia

Continuation sheet Item number

For APC SECTOR.

Pecalwed ...

date entered.

Page 1

10

Item 10: Verbal Boundary Description and Justification

it parallels the southern side of said private road 1000 feet to the second contour line east of the main structure; thence following said contour line, first north and then west 1200 feet to where it contacts the northern side of the private drive; thence 100 feet northwest along the northern side of the private drive to West Virginia Route 48; thence 90 feet along the eastern side of West Virginia Route 48 to the point of origin at the Tree Line; encompassing an area of approximately eight acres that has a landscaped, self-contained ambiance that has, historically, made up the immediate grounds of "Rosebrake". The lines of trees and hedges form a natural boundary that, while providing for vistas from both the front and rear elevations, give the property a sense of privacy and place.

