Narrative Description

NOTE: Within the text, resource numbers are designated as (R#) and photo numbers are designated as (P#).

Wheeling, the county seat of Ohio County, is located in the Upper Ohio Valley region in the northern panhandle of West Virginia. The city lies at the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains and along the banks of the Ohio River. It is the principal city of the Wheeling, WV-OH Metropolitan Statistical Area and had a population of 27,052 as of the 2020 Census.<sup>1</sup>

The boundary increase area is located to the north of the current North Wheeling Historic District (National Register Reference numbers 88002693 and 07001419) and is located in the Second Ward of the City of Wheeling. It lies to the east, and across the Ohio River, from the Wheeling Island Historic District (National Register Reference number 92000320). The area of the boundary expansion comprises approximately 20.9 acres located between the Ohio River to the west and a steep bluff to the east. The elevation in the expansion area ranges from 660 feet to 810 feet at the highest point (all elevations approximate). The terrain rises gently from the river to Main Street, with a 50-foot increase. East of Main Street, the rise is more dramatic, with a 50-foot increase in the two blocks between Main and Market Streets. Pike Street, which connects Main Street with the National Road at the top of the hill, rises from 710 feet at Main Street to 810 feet at the highest point in the expansion area, then rises to 850 feet at the point where it intersects with National Road. The area of the boundary increase is generally encompassed by Northern Parkway at the north, the Ohio River at the west, 6th Street at the south, and Market Street, with an extension halfway up Pike Street, to the east.

The streets are laid out in a generally rectangular grid pattern with some variations due to topography. East of Main Street, the grade rises dramatically to the east (P#28, 34-37, 39)). Most of the streets are lined with pedestrian sidewalks that lie directly adjacent the street. There is no road verge, and thus there are no trees along any of the streets. The sidewalks are generally concrete, but some locations retain small sections of brick sidewalk. Due to the steep grade, portions of the sidewalks at the cross streets are stepped (P#34). Sandstone block stone retaining walls are situated along the east side of Market Street (P#40). Properties located on the steeper grades generally are set back from the street. There are no true alleys in the expansion area. Lane B, between Main, Market, 5th and 6th Streets, is classified as an alley by the city, although it has properties that face, and are addressed as, Lane B. In addition, the southern part of West Street, located west of Main Street, acts as an alley.

The north-south streets include Main, West, Kenney and Market Streets. Main Street (West Virginia Route 2) is the major north-south corridor and contains mixed-use, commercial and residential properties. West Street, which lies to the west of Main, is generally residential. East of Main are Kenney Street, Lane B and Market Street, which are all residential. The cross streets (4th, 5th, & 6th Streets, Pike Street, and Garden Court) are essentially residential with the exception of a former church and several commercial garage buildings.

The expanded area exhibits an urban morphology with residences set adjacent or close together with little or no setback. The expansion area is comprised of several different subdivisions, so the original lot sizes are not consistent throughout the area. The most common lot size appears to have been approximately .1148 acre, but many of the lots have been further subdivided to support two or three buildings. Since there are no alleys, back yards are fairly spacious. The neighborhood displays a continuity of scale, as all of the buildings are one to three stories. There are many vacant lots due to demolition. In areas that are fairly intact, the buildings present a streetscape with a continuous vertical face. (P#23-26)

The area of the boundary expansion includes 142 resources with 82 contributing buildings (2 of which are outbuildings), and 60 noncontributing buildings (12 of which are outbuildings). Of the 60 noncontributing buildings, 29 are non-contributing due to age, because the District's period of significance ends in 1920. Of the 29 buildings classified as noncontributing due to age, only 6 were constructed less than 50 years ago.

Most residences are free-standing single-family homes. Some of the older residences along Main Street abut the neighboring buildings, but they were not constructed as rowhouses. Multi-family housing consists of four apartment buildings and approximately 20 duplexes. Most of the 19th century houses have side gable roofs, and some have a gabled wing that was either centered or situated to one side to form an ell. The residences generally feature a side hall orientation and an asymmetrical front façade. Houses constructed in the 20th century generally have a front-gable or cross-gable roof, and several have at least one canted bay window.

Most of the properties have no setback from the street. Earlier residences have small stoops or simply a set of steps to provide access from the pedestrian sidewalk. The houses from the late 19th and early-20th centuries generally have a full-width front porch, but it is usually set at the front property line. A few residences are set back from the street and have front lawns.

North Wheeling was and remains a working-class neighborhood. Most of the residential buildings in the expansion area are modest in size and ornamentation. The earliest surviving residences were constructed with Federal styling, although other than massing and fenestration patterns, there is little other evidence of the style. Examples include 444 Kenney Street (R#72, P#1) and 29 Pike Street (R#71, P#3). Another example is the duplex at 323-325 Kenney Street (R#111, P#11), although a front dormer has been added at the attic level.

The residence at 455 Market was constructed in the Greek Revival style and is the only residential example of the style in the expanded area (R#91, P#2). Many of the mid-19th century buildings exhibit forms that suggest that they originally exhibited Italianate styling, including large overhanging front eaves supporting box gutters. However, in many cases the cornice details have been removed. The residence at 325 Main Street (R#12, P#4-L) appears to have lost its cornice details, while the adjacent residence at 321-323 Main Street (R#11, P#4-R) retains ornate window and door hoods and an elaborate cornice with double brackets. The most common late-19th and early 20th century styles are Queen Anne and Colonial Revival, although most of the decorative features are modest or have been removed completely. There are also some examples of the Bungalow building type. Many of the residences appear to have been built with no discernible style. Others have been so significantly altered that the original style is no longer recognizable.

Several mixed-use commercial/residential buildings are located in the expanded area. Most of these have a storefront at the first level with a residence at the upper stories. Many of the formerly mixed-use buildings have been converted to exclusively residential use or have unoccupied commercial space at the 1st level. A few of the mixed-use buildings exhibit Italianate styling, such as the building at 302 Main Street (R#39, P#19).

The only exclusively commercial building that was constructed during the period of significance is the former bakery building at 407 Main Street (R#14, P#21), which was constructed in 1916. It was designed by acclaimed Wheeling architect Frederick F. Faris for the General Baking Company. Other commercial buildings include a convenience store and several commercial garage buildings. These buildings were constructed c. 1930 – 2006. There are two purpose-built church buildings in the district. The former North Street Methodist Episcopal Church at 37 5th Street was constructed c. 1850 in the Greek Revival style, with the bell tower added c. 1880. (R#89, P#22). The other church building is the Bethlehem Apostolic Temple at 330 Main Street, (R#46, P#8-L), which is non-contributing due to a construction date of 1973.

The oldest buildings in the boundary increase area were constructed in the 1830s. Examples include 416 Main Street (R#49, P#5) and 422 Main Street (R#51, P#6). Buildings constructed in the 1840s include 29 Pike Street (R#71, P#3) and 444 Kenney Street (R#72, P#1). Approximately 28 buildings are estimated to have construction dates prior to 1870. Of the 128 buildings (excluding outbuildings) in the boundary increase area, about 54% were constructed before 1900 and about 88% were constructed during the Period of Significance. All the outbuildings were constructed in the 20th century. Since the end of World War II, ten buildings and five outbuildings have been constructed in the boundary increase area.

Almost all the buildings in the expansion area have experienced some form of alteration. Alterations to original finishes include the installation of aluminum or vinyl siding or simulated masonry over the original building cladding. Many windows and most doors have been replaced. Some window openings have been changed in size and proportion to accommodate a different type of window. Many buildings have lost their decorative details at the cornice level. Some buildings have additions that are very intrusive, including major construction at the front façade, which has dramatically impacted the original appearance of the structure.

The portion of North Wheeling that is included in the boundary increase area serves as an example of decline caused by de-industrialization in the greater Wheeling area. The decline of industry has led to depopulation, which in turn has led to erosion of the housing stock. Although the boundary increase area contains a large number of early-mid 19th century resources, these properties have not been generally recognized or treated as significant. Many streets, including Main Street, have large expanses of vacant lots due to demolition. Vacant and/or abandoned buildings can be found throughout the area, and resources are being lost on a monthly basis.

Despite these circumstances, the area of boundary increase retains a large number of significant contributing buildings that exemplify a working-class industrial neighborhood in the Northern Panhandle of West Virginia.

Contributing/Non-Contributing Methodology

Since nearly every building in the boundary expansion area has experienced some modification, the criteria for the establishment of “contributing” or “non-contributing” was carefully considered. Residences are the most common resource type and have undergone the most alteration. Since many resources have been lost to demolition, the remaining buildings are important in maintaining the integrity of the neighborhood, including the scale and massing that define the urban streetscapes of the expansion area.

The presence of original materials and features was analyzed. Changes to fenestration were evaluated based on the visibility of the change, with modifications that were somewhat obscured by porches given more latitude. The number and scope of non-contributing modifications were evaluated in context of the remaining historic fabric of the building. In some cases, a modification that would normally be disqualifying was counteracted by high integrity in all other materials and features. In those cases, the building was considered contributing. Also considered was whether the modifications appear to have been completed during the Period of Significance, which ends in 1920. Some modifications, even if completed during the Period of Significance, were deemed to so completely obscure the original appearance that they were deemed to be disqualifying. Overall, each building was evaluated on its ability to convey its original appearance, or appearance during the Period of Significance. For example, if an 1870s Italianate house “reads” as an 1870s Italianate house, despite some modifications, it was considered contributing to the historic character of the North Wheeling Historic District.

This residence is a 2-story duplex that has 4 bays and a side gable roof. The foundation is stone, and the walls are brick. The cornice, which is now clad in aluminum, suggests an Italianate influence. The front porch is non-original. A 1-story addition is situated at the east side (rear) of the residence. The structure is located on the northeast corner of West Street and E. 4th Street. It faces west and has minimal setback from the pedestrian sidewalk. The resource retains general historic architectural integrity and contributes to the overall historic character of the District.

Outbuilding

c. 1930

noncontributing building

A detached glazed tile block garage with a shed roof is situated at the east side of the property. The garage bays have been infilled with wood swinging doors. The garage is accessed from an alley at the east. The resource was constructed outside the period of significance and therefore does not contribute to the historic character of the District.

contributing building

This 2-story side-passage residence has 3 bays and a side gable roof. The foundation is sandstone, and the walls are brick. The front door is a replacement. Sloped metal awnings are situated above the 2nd story windows. There is a concrete front porch with a hipped roof. Two ell additions are situated at the east side (rear) of the residence. They are clad in aluminum or vinyl siding and novelty wood siding. The porches on the south sides of the ells have been enclosed. A gable-roofed single-car concrete block garage with a modern garage door is attached at the rear and is accessed from the alley. Attached to the garage is a shed-roofed utility shed. It is clad in vinyl siding and the roof covers an access walkway at the south. The structure is located on the east side of West Street, between 3rd Street and E. 4th Street. It faces west and has minimal setback from the pedestrian sidewalk. The resource retains general historic architectural integrity and contributes to the overall historic character of the District.

This 2-story, L-shaped brick residence has 3 bays and a hipped roof. It appears to be a variation of the side hall townhouse type. The foundation is ashlar stone block. Some of the windows have been replaced, but the west elevation retains original 2/2 double hung windows. The former 2-story corner entry porch was enclosed c. 1900 and is clad with wood shingles. A non-original exterior wood stair leads to the 2nd level. Two interior chimneys are situated at the north elevation. The building is located on the west side of the 307 Main Street property, between 3rd Street and 4th Street. It has a small setback from an alley to the west. The resource retains general historic architectural integrity and contributes to the overall historic character of the District.

This 1-story Greek Revival church building has a rectangular plan and a front gable roof. The raised foundation is sandstone block, and the walls are clad in brick laid in running bond. The gable end has horizontal and raking cornices. Brick pilasters with limestone caps at the west and east corners extend up to a brick cornice that is situated below the gable end. A 4-story bell tower addition, which is centered on the front façade, features corner brick pilasters with simple limestone caps. The building retains its original windows, some of which are stained glass. Several of the windows are boarded over or are missing glass. All the window openings are rectangular, except at the ones at the top of the bell tower, which feature semi-elliptical arches. The windows have sandstone sills and sandstone lintels with a carved geometric design. The front entrance, which is located in the bell tower, has double wood-paneled doors and a transom that appear to be original. A modern sloped metal canopy is situated above the doors. A 1-story (with basement) hip-roofed addition is attached at the rear to form an L shape. The addition faces Market Street and features 4/4 rectangular double hung windows in openings with row-lock arches. The building is located on the north side of 5th Street in the middle of the block between Kenney and Market Streets. It faces south and has a modest setback from the pedestrian sidewalk. A sandstone block wall retains a small lawn area at the southwest corner of the building. The grade slopes down to the west. This 2-story duplex has 4 bays and a shed roof. The foundation is concrete block, and the building is clad in vinyl siding. The doors and windows are replacements, and the fenestration pattern has been modified to remove the 2 center windows at the 2nd story. Except for the base, none of the porch elements appear to be original. The building is located on the northeast corner of Market Street and 5th Street. It is situated on a hillside and faces west with a moderate setback from the pedestrian sidewalk. A stone retaining wall lines the front border of the property, adjacent the sidewalk. Due to the modifications, this resource does not retain sufficient historic architectural integrity and therefore does not contribute to the historic character of the District.

This 1½ story duplex with basement has 5 bays and a side gable roof with cornice returns. The land drops steeply to the west so that there are 2 full stories in a full basement at the rear. A shed-roofed dormer clad in siding is situated at the east (front), and two small gable dormers are situated at the west. A 2-story lean-to addition at the rear is clad in aluminum siding. The foundation is stone, and the walls are brick laid in common bond. The 6/6 double hung windows are smaller than original and are topped by brick infill. The windows have sandstone lintels and sills. The two entrance doors are topped by transoms and wooden hoods. The building has paired interior chimneys that are situated near each gable end. The residence is located on the west side of Kenney Street, between 3rd Street and 4th Street. The grade along Kenney slopes gradually to the south. The dwelling faces east with no setback from the pedestrian sidewalk. Despite the change in fenestration, this building still reads as a mid-19th century brick duplex. It retains general historic architectural integrity and contributes to the overall historic character of the District.

Narrative Statement of Significance

Summary Paragraphs

The North Wheeling Historic District (Boundary Increase) is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places at the local level under National Register Criterion A: Community Planning and Development and under Criterion C: Architecture.

Wheeling's strategic location was a major factor in its growth and development as the leading city in western Virginia and later West Virginia. The city's position as a transportation hub, with connections to river, road and rail, contributed to its 19th-century manufacturing and industrial development. The boundary increase area is eligible for listing under Criterion A as it represents the growth and development of a working-class neighborhood in Wheeling from the mid-19th century through the early 20th century. The boundary increase area is eligible for listing under Criterion C as the area represents the mid-19th to early-20th century architectural styles and types of a working class neighborhood in an industrial city in West Virginia. The Period of Significance for the boundary increase is c. 1830-1920, unchanged from the original North Wheeling Historic District.

Narrative Statement of Significance

Community Planning and Development

The Wheeling area was first settled in 1769 by pioneers from the area around Berkeley County, Virginia. Fort Henry (originally Fort Fincastle) was established in 1774 and was besieged twice during the Revolutionary War. Wheeling was established as a town in 1795 and was incorporated in 1806. It became the county seat of Ohio County, Virginia in 1797. In 1818, Wheeling became the western terminus for the National Road, which formed a link between the eastern waterways and the Ohio River. The Baltimore and Ohio (B&O) Railroad reached the city in late 1852. The city's strategic location and transportation connections contributed to its rapid growth as a major inland port for goods and passengers moving between the east and the west. The numerous industries that developed in the Wheeling area, including iron, glass, pottery, brick, tiles, textiles, tobacco products and beer, led to the city's emergence as the industrial leader in western Virginia and later West Virginia.

A general history of Wheeling and a history of the existing North Wheeling Historic District was presented in the original nomination (NR# 88002693) and the first Boundary Increase nomination (NR# 07001419). This boundary increase nomination focuses on the development of the area north of the existing District.

Brothers Ebenezer and Jonathan Zane claimed 800 acres lying north of Wheeling Creek. Ebenezer, the elder brother, claimed the land from 7th Street south and east to Wheeling Creek. Jonathan claimed the land north 7th Street to a stream later known as Jonathan's Gut (or Jonathan's Run), which was located just south of the current Northern Parkway.

In 1793, Ebenezer Zane laid out the first city lots in Wheeling on level land between the current 7th and 10th Streets. The 112 lots were laid out in a grid pattern with eight lots divided by a narrow east-west alley in each block. There were no alleys running north-south. Main and Market Streets were the north-south streets, and the cross streets were named after the first four presidents of the United States – Washington (now 7th), Adams (now 8th), Jefferson (now 9th) and Madison (now 10th). Deeds stipulated that a dwelling of at least 16'x18' be constructed on the land within seven years, or the land would be forfeited.

In the late 1790s, Jonathan Zane platted an addition to the city on his land between 5th and 7th Streets from the east side of Market Street to the river. Jonathan Zane's Addition was recorded in 1825. The plat was laid out in a grid pattern, the same as the original plat. The lots between Main and Market Streets were 66'x132', while the lots at the riverfront and on the east side of Market were 66'x281'. Development in this area was spurred by the National Road, which entered Wheeling from the hill above just north of the current 7th Street.

A plat for the Town of North Wheeling was filed in November 1830 by John McLure, Archibald Woods, J. List, T. Woods, James H. Forsyth, Thomas Johnston, Israel Updegraff, and a second J. List. The plat included 108 lots on seven acres north of Jonathan Zane's Addition. An additional 58¼ acres on the hillside to the east were divided into four large lots. Approximately two acres along the river between 4th Street and Garden Court had previously been sold to Cuthbert & Co. for the development of an iron foundry. The plat extended Main Street (60' wide) north to Jonathan's Gut. An unnamed street (now Kenney) was laid out with a 25' width to the east of Main Street, and another unnamed street (now West), 50' in width, was laid out to the west of Main between the current 3rd and 4th Streets. Unnamed cross streets (now 1st – 3rd Streets) were laid out at 50' wide, and Union Street (now western part of 4th Street) was laid out at 41' in width. Cole Street (now 4th Street between Main and Kenney) was 40' in width. Additionally, a 20' wide alley was established east of Main Street at the southern end of the plat (now Pike Street), and a 14' alley was platted from Main Street to the river between the current 3rd and 4th Streets. Due to the topography in this area, the lot sizes and block sizes were not consistent.

In 1815, James Pemberton opened the first boatyard in North Wheeling, where he constructed keelboats. Shortly thereafter, the Bell (flatboats), Atkins (keelboats) and Gardner (flatboats and keelboats) concerns were operating in the northern part of North Wheeling along the shore of the Ohio River. In 1831, Arthur Phillips established a brass foundry and riverboat steam engine factory between 6th and 7th Streets. Phillips also established a steamboat works with Elijah Murray and Thomas Thompson. In the early 1830s, Thomas Sweeney took over Cuthbert iron foundry located between 4th and 5th Streets and added steamboat production. The Sweeneys also established a flint glass works on Main Street between 2nd and 3rd Streets.

Wheeling's first ironworks was established north of Jonathan's Gut in 1834. The ironworks was operated unsuccessfully by several concerns until the late 1840s, when new operators developed it into the very successful Top Mill, a large producer of cut nails.

John & Mary McLure's Addition #1 was platted in 1845 and was located between the Jonathan Zane and North Wheeling Additions. The Addition included an area east of Main Street and north of 5th Street. Pike Street was extended up the hill to intersect with National Road. Bushfield's and McMechen's Addition of 1848 platted an area east of Kenney Street to a point a little south of 3rd Street along the northern part of Market Street (Market Street Extension).

In the 1840s and 1850s, the Sweeney glass and iron operations were expanded, and the Top Mill became a successful enterprise. The completion of the B&O railroad line to Wheeling in 1853 further enhanced the industrial success of the city. War and famine in Europe brought many German and Irish immigrants to Wheeling, where they found jobs in the varied industries. As the industries grew, the need for working-class housing increased.

The earliest map of Wheeling (1853) indicates that the Sweeney glass and iron works, a foundry, and a tannery were located within the boundary expansion area. A school was located at the southwest corner of 5th and Main Streets, and the North Street Methodist Episcopal Church (R#89, P#22), which was constructed c. 1850, was located on 5th Street between Kenney and Market Streets. Most of the lots between 4th and 6th Streets had at least one building, and the areas to the north were more sparsely populated. Also indicated on the map is the Sweeney Mansion on the west side of Main Street between 1st and 2nd Streets. Wheeling Hospital, which was founded in 1850 and operated by the Sisters of St. Joseph, moved into the Sweeney Mansion in 1856.

During the Civil War, Wheeling Hospital provided care for both Union and Confederate troops. The Top Mill was converted to wartime production and manufactured gunboat plates. David Maass founded the North Wheeling Brewery in the early 1860s. It was located on the east side of Kenney at 4th Street and operated until about 1876. Citizen's Railway, a horse-drawn trolley, opened in Wheeling in 1866. It extended from the Top Mill to the south end of the city. In North Wheeling, the tracks ran along the center of Main Street.

Beginning in the 1870s, the city began to undertake a number of infrastructure improvements, including street grading and paving, an expanded water system, and telephone and electrical services. Although the B&O Railroad reached Wheeling in 1853, the line originally terminated just north of Wheeling Creek. As of the mid-1870s, there was still no rail service into North Wheeling. The Pittsburgh, Wheeling & Kentucky Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was completed through North Wheeling in 1878.

By 1871, several of the lots within the boundary expansion area had been subdivided, and almost all of the lots had at least one structure. Businesses indicated on the 1871 map include Wilson & Dunlevy, Hanes & Wilson Lumberyard, North Wheeling Brewery, Eagle Foundry and the Sweeney enterprises. In 1874, John McLure platted his Second Addition. It was located east of Market Street and south of East 4th Street and extended up the hill to Mt. Wood Road. The two McLure Additions filled in the area between Jonathan Zane's Addition and the Town of North Wheeling Addition. In 1872, the glass works in North Wheeling was sold. It was occupied by a few different companies in the 1870s. In 1878, the North Wheeling Glass Company was incorporated to produce bottles, flasks and decanters with unusual shapes and designs.

A map of North Wheeling published in 1877 depicted the glass works, the Sweeney & Co. Works, Eagle Foundry, Union Planing Mill and North Wheeling Brewery. Also shown were Wheeling Hospital, North Street M. E. Church, and the school, which remained in the same locations. During the 1870s and early 1880s, the Top Mill remained a prominent producer of cut nails. By the mid-1880s, the Top Mill had diversified into production of cast iron pipe, so the company was not crippled by the Great Nail Strike of 1885. In 1887, the streetcar system in Wheeling was electrified, and Citizen's Railway was merged with the Wheeling Railway Company.

The 1889 map of the area shows North Wheeling Glass, a stove foundry, and the plans for the West Virginia China Co. The school, hospital and church are also shown on the map in the same locations. Most of the residential lots were built out, with the exception of many of the lots on the hillside to the east.

Despite a few national economic downturns, Wheeling industries continued to grow in the period between 1890 and 1910. In 1892, the Top Mill was consolidated with two other steel mills to form the Wheeling Steel and Iron Company. This company was one of the three firms that combined to form the Wheeling Steel Corporation in 1920.

In 1890, the West Virginia China Company (later Ohio Valley China Company) constructed a new plant on the site of the former Sweeney Iron Works. The company platted the Ohio Valley China Co Addition in 1897. It was located on the west side of Main Street, south of 4th. By 1901, the plant was occupied by the Riverside Pottery Company.

Around 1900, J. L. Stifel & Company relocated its plant from 9th and Main Streets to the west side of Main Street, between 3rd and 4th Streets. A 1901 map shows the Stifel works, Riverside Pottery and North Wheeling Glass Works. The W.A. Wilson Lumber Yard occupied the lot just south of Ohio Valley China and Riverside Pottery on the west side of Main Street. The Union Planing Mill, and W.A. Wilson & Sons Builders and Painters Supply-were located across Main Street from the lumber yard. The school, church and hospital continued in the same locations. Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church was constructed in 1903 on the west side of Main Street, just north of Wheeling Hospital. Except for some lots on the hillside, there were almost no vacant lots remaining in the boundary expansion area by 1901.

The Glessner Subdivision was platted in 1900 and included the east side of Main Street between Pike and 5th Streets. J. B. Garden platted a subdivision west of Main Street on both sides of Garden Court in 1912. The General Baking Company (R#14, P#21) constructed a large facility at 407 Main Street in 1916. By the early 1920s, the former Riverside Pottery site was occupied by the Wheeling Sanitary Manufacturing Company, and J. L. Stifel had expanded its facility across West Street to the riverbank.

Many of the industrial properties, including North Wheeling Glass, Wheeling Sanitary Manufacturing, and J. L. Stifel closed in the early- to mid-20th century and the buildings were demolished. Wheeling Hospital moved to a new facility in 1975, and the North Wheeling buildings were demolished in 1997. Sacred Heart Church closed in the 1990s, and the building was occupied by a non-profit until a fire destroyed the building in 2019. Although these buildings have been demolished and are therefore not part of the boundary expansion area, the activities associated with them contributed to the development of this area of North Wheeling.

Architecture

The North Wheeling Historic District (Boundary Increase) is also significant for its architecture. The area is comprised of buildings constructed from the mid-19th century through the early 21st century. The following description concerns only the buildings constructed within the period of significance, which ends in 1920.

The boundary increase area is primarily residential with a small number of religious, commercial and mixed-use buildings. Unlike the existing District, most of the single-family residences in the area were working class housing with modest forms and ornamentation. The buildings are primarily brick on stone or glazed tile block foundations. The most common building form is the side hall, which is found in both residential and commercial structures. The boundary increase area contains a significant number of buildings that were constructed prior to the Civil War. Among the earliest buildings, there are a few examples of the Federal style and two examples of the Greek Revival style. Many of the buildings appear to have originally been Italianate in styling, but the distinctive features have been removed from some of the structures. The boundary increase area contains a few examples of the Queen Anne, Colonial Revival and Craftsman styles. The former General Baking Company (R#14, P#21) exhibits some elements of the Mission style. Many of the buildings do not exhibit the characteristics of any discernable style. Although there are many vacant lots due to loss of resources, the boundary increase area contains a significant collection of 19th- and early 20th-century architecture.

The architecture of the boundary increase area is a modest interpretation of common 19th and early 20th-century architectural styles found elsewhere in Wheeling. In addition to those buildings that can be classified as an architectural style, there are many vernacular buildings with no discernable style. The buildings of the boundary increase area constitute an example of a compact working-class neighborhood that developed in the 19th and early 20th centuries in an industrial city in the Upper Ohio Valley.

Boundary Justification

According to the National Park Service Bulletins "How to Complete the National Register Registration Form" and "Defining Boundaries for National Register Properties", boundaries for historic districts should "encompass the single area of land containing the significant concentration of buildings, sites, or objects making up the district."<sup>2</sup> In addition, the district's significance and historic integrity should help to determine the location of the boundaries. Certain factors that are outlined in the bulletins, such as visual changes to the district's character and development patterns, were considered when selecting the boundary for the North Wheeling Historic District (Boundary Increase). The selected boundary encompasses but does not exceed the extent of the significance of the resources in North Wheeling that are outside the existing District. Peripheral areas that have lost historic integrity due to demolitions or significant alterations resulting in a complete loss of character-defining features were excluded from the expanded boundary. The boundary increase for the North Wheeling Historic District has been drawn to include the concentration of historic resources that were constructed during the period of significance that retain, to a sufficient degree, integrity of location, setting, design, workmanship, feeling, and association.

This area of North Wheeling serves as an example of post-industrial decline. Some streets in the neighborhood have large expanses of vacant lots due to demolition. Many occupied buildings are in deteriorated condition, and many others are vacant and in very poor condition. The area is experiencing frequent demolitions of buildings that would likely have been designated as contributing to the historic district. The irregular shape of the proposed boundary reflects this loss of historic fabric but still captures the essence of the heritage of this working-class neighborhood.
